Any advice for someone who will be heading to DC alone?

Just took off work on short notice. I was going regardless if I got permission or not, as this is far more important than anything I'd be doing in an office. It just hit me that I can't live life on the sidelines, otherwise I have no right to complain about the c[redacted]ome. I want to be able to say I was there, and stood for the real America and against the one the elites are trying to force upon us. And if we have to fight, I will fight.

Problem is I have no one to go with. Either family/friends don't like trump, don't care about any of this, can't take off work or won't try to, etc. I wanna fly in to BWI and I guess take the train into DC. I'll look to book myself a room to stay tonight, but besides that; where and when is everyone gathering?

Just don't like the idea of being alone in enemy territory. Any advice would be appreciated. Never been alone like this before, but hey, time to start walking the path of manhood.

5 You will be fine. I went to the last one on 12/12 alone and I am a female. If you don't go you will regret it the rest of your life.

3 You'll surely find a group of like minded people. Ask to link up with them as you're alone. Any one of us will gladly take you in so that you're safe.

BLM plaza north of the WH. Get out before dark but be prepared to stay if trapped in the city. Recommend staying in DC. Trains may close or close early

▼ A lot of us are going solo; don't stay out early AM or late at night, and you should be fine! You'll find a group to link up with when you arrive. If you're not comfortable, check out and link up with this guy from First Harvest Ministries, and there'll be a bunch of them there as well: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Gv03-Gd\_L6Q
